

People in Grästorp,

The Corona virus shows us that mankind cannot rule the world the way many people would wish, and at the moment times are hard. Many people are worried about their health as well as others', about economy and the challenges we as a society and individuals have to face in a time like this. Of course it is impossible for us in our small village to have an influence on global economy so we have to rely on our parliament and government and their doing the right thing for Sweden.

For us who work and live in Grästorp there are many things we can do. The local authorities have well prepared emergency plans which now are tested sharply. We cooperate with both the region and the county administrative board and are well prepared whatever will happen.

As a "Grästorper" you can also be of help: We can keep on doing what we always have. In Grästorp we are good at co-operating and we show over and over again how you in a small community can get strong when everybody works together. We usually call it the Grästorp Spirit, and now when times are rougher our joint strength will be of great use.

We in Grästorp have put together a number of concrete things that you as a citizen can do to strengthen our society and actually contribute to us together getting through the pandemic in a good way.

Best regards from,
